

In Regards to: RM-10810

A possible compromise to the problems at hand, but still far more complicated than necessary. It reminds me of an old saying, Keep It Simple Stupid!

Element 1 should be completely abolished from license testing. There is no further reason for it to be upheld, the only reason why it has been obtained this long was due to the treaty requirement, which was removed at WRC-2003. The FCC should take swift action in removing all forms of CW testing from any license class of Amateur radio license.

Respectfully,

Scott Lichtsinn, KB0ONLY